TO THE RIGHT VER-
TVOVS, HIGH, AND MIGHTIE
PRINCE KING IAMES, OVR DRED

SOVERAIGNE, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, KING of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the Faith, &c. long life, happie daies, and most prosperous raigne.

As there is not any thing in this world more acceptable vnto God, (most gracious Soueraigne) then a contrite heart: so I presume that there is not any thing in this world (next to the leue of God) more acceptable vnto your Majestie, then a true and loyall subiect. Thus vsing this perswasion, for a sure argument of your Majesties gracious acceptance, I presume to manifest my selfe, a most true and loyall subiect vnto your Majestie. In token whereof, I haue gathered the chiefe of my treasure, the which in most humble and obedient manner, I present vnto your Highnesse: beteeching your Highnesse not to mislike your subiect, for the subiect, sith it is for the good of all your Majesties louing subjects. The Art is deuine, the Instrument laudable, my Meaning good, my Skill drownde in the depth of Catoes wordes (who faith) Nec te collaudes, nec te culpaueris ipse. And yet I can say for my selfe, that once I was thought (in Denmarke at Elfanure) the fittest to instruct your Majesties Queene, our most gracious Ladie and Mistres.

Thus prostrating my selfe at your Majesties feet, incessantlie crauing pardon for my bold attempt, I rest. Restles in praier, for your Graces welfare, both now and euer.

Your Majesties

most loyall and

obedient subiect,

Thomas Robinson.

To the Reader.

Eight courteous Gentlemen, and gentle Readers, your fauourable acceptance of my first fruits from idleness, hath eccited mee further to congratulate your Muscally endeauours. And in my conceit, I can no way better fit your good and willing mindes, then in shewing you how you may very soone, and very perfectly intru& your selues to play (vpon your best beloued instrument) the Lute, also the Orpharion, Pandora, and Viol de Gamba, any lesson (if it bee not too too trickified) at the first sight. But bee it as it bee may, you shall haue rules of reason, to ouer-rule vnreasonable odd Cratchets, giueing you to vnderstand, that what is beyond the true course of Nature, must needs bee without all compasse of Art, and withall, nothing out-runne Nature but Follie : so much for that.

Also (for example sake) I haue set some lessons of all sorts : whereof some being old, I was requested to set them new after my fashion, some new out of the fat, some neither very new, nor very old, but yet all mine owne setting, and the most of them, mine owne inuention.

But Gentlemen, once more I will make you promise, that if these Masterlike rules, and Scholerlike lessons, doe but any whit content you, I will come forth, With Cracks mee this Nut, (I meane) onely lessons for one, two, and three Lutes, and some with ditties, wherein I will striue either (for euer) to winne your fauours, or starue in the dole of your disgrace.

More for you, than for him-selfe,

Thomas Robinson.

The Schoole of Musicke, perfectly teaching the true fingering of the Lute, Pandora, Orpharion, and Violl de Gamba, Dialogue wife, betwixt a Knight, (who hath children to be taught) and Timotheus, that should teach them.

KNIGHT.

OV are hartelic welcome into the countrie, and the better welcome, for that you come at the first sending for, for it is an old saying, that cunning men are curious, especiallye Musitions.

TIMOTHEVS.

Sir, if I had thought I should not haue bene welcome, you might haue thought me vnwise to haue taken all this paines: againe, it was my promise to instruct your children, and am readie at your pleasures; but I pray you, why should Musitions be more curious then others.

Kn. In keeping your promise, you haue done well, and so well as I can, I will answer your demand: in mine opinion, I think it impossible to be a good Musition, except a man be scene in all the seauen liberal Sciences, for I know many great clarkes in Diuinitie, Physicke, Law, Philosophie, &c. that haue small, or no knowledge at all in Musick; nay, some that quite reciet it. Now listh it behoueth a good Musition to be somewhat scene in all Arts, I conclude, that this all (with the help of an od crotchet) is the reason why Musitions are so curious.

Tim. True sir, your concluding all, is both short & sharp, how be it I must graunt you this, that it is behouefull a Musition that would be excellent, to be scene in all or the most part of the seauen liberal Arts, and so neree as I can, I will shew you which, and how necessarie those are, that a Musition ought not to be ignorant off. First hee must be a diuine, that is, he must be diuinelie giuen, he must aboue all things serue God, that God may blesse him, in all his good deuoures; hee must read the scriptures, for it is the fountaine of all knowledge, & it teacheth the diuine harmonie of the soule of man: for Musicke is none other then a perfect harmonie, whose diuinitie is scene in the perfectnesse of his proportions, as, his vnison sheweth the vnite, from whence all other, (concord, discords, consonancies, or others whatsoever) springeth, next his vnite, his third; (which is the perfectest concord that is in all Musicke) representeth the perfect, & most holie Trinitie; his fift, (the most perfect consonance in all Musicke, for that it is the verie essence of all concord) representeth the perfection of that most perfect number of siue, which made the perfect atonement, betwene God, and many. His eight, (which as it is, but as his vnison,) representeth his Alpha and Omega: & as what is aboue his eight, is but as a repetition, as from his vnison, as it were a new beginning; so it sheweth our returne from whence we came, as it were, in notes of Musicke, in a long or short time, sweet or sowre composition, and thus, (I hope, without offence to that most holie Alpha and Omega) I conclude, the necessitie of diuinitie in a Musition. Now that a Musition should be a Physition, I see no such necessitie, But that Musicke is Physicall, it is plainlie scene by those maladies it cureth. As it cureth melancholies, it much preuaileth against madnesse; If a man be in paines of the gout, of any wound, or of the head, it much mitigateth the furie therof; and it is said, that Musicke hath a salue for euerie sore. But of necessitie, a Musition must be a perfect Arithmatician, for that Musicke consisteth altogether of true number, and proportion, and thus, at this so cheefe, and necessarie science of Arithmaticke, I should it best to flay the process of Musicke, as touching the necessitie of other than these, which I haue mentioned to be fit in a good Musition.

Kn. I like you wel, & loue your Musicke the better, for your good discourse therof, and my hope is (in a manner) already satisfied, but notwithstanding, there remaineth in mee, a little spark of feare of an euell that may happen, after all your paines taken, and my cost bestowed.

Tim. Why sir, it may be you feare least your children should die, when you haue brought them vp well, and bestowed great cost vpon them, or if they should proue vnkinde hereafter, or if they should set light by that good qualitie, which cost them so little, and you so much.

Kn. You say well good Timotheus, all this is to be doubted, but I feare none so much as the last, which is, that they will be careless and forgetfull, of so excellent a qualitie as is playing vpon the Lutes; and my feare is the greater, for that it was mine owne fault, that in my youth could haue played so well, as any in those daies, and now it is as cleane forgotten, and which is more, I haue no willing mind in the world, either to practise (to recouer that I lost), or to learne a new: for the play that is now, and the lessons (that are now a daies) are so curiouse set, that we of the olde mine, are sin oakt vp like to sea-cole, and this age, hath the golden ore, and sparkling diamonds of diuine Musitions, that for mine owne part, I am content, to giue place both to youth, and the time, onelic content to be an auditors, and louer of the best,

The Schoole of Musicke.

Tim. Sir, it is verie true, that manie, both men and women, that in their youth could haue played (for that kinde of play) passing well, in their age, or when they once haue bene married, haue forgotten all, as if they had neuer knowne what a Lute had meant; and the reason I finde to proceed (in the begunning of their learning) from the ignorance of their teachers, for in older times they shoue (onelic) to haue a quick hand vpon the Lute, to runne hurrie hurrie, keeping a Catt in the gutter vpon the ground, now true then false, now vp now downe, with such painfull play, mocking, mowing, grieping, grinning, fighting, supping, heauing, shouldring, labouring, and sweating, like cart Iades, without any skill in the world, or rule, or reason to play a lesson, or finger the Lute, or guide the bodie, or know any thing, that belongeth, either to skill or reason.

Kni. Now truly Timotheus, I am perswaded you haue hit the marke, and when it went so hard with them in such case, and simple stuff, as then they vsed, what shift would they make to play at the first sight (in these daies) an indifferent lesson set, if they were now liuing, but I pray you can you play any lesson at the first sight, and also teach others to doe the same.

Tim. Yea Sir, that I can, or else I were not worthy to be a teacher, for it hath ben the most part of my studie to bring the Lute, Citharen, (and other instruments of Musick) into a method by generall rules, most perfect and easie, so that with my instructions, one (that cannot vse the Lute, or other instrument) may verie readilie attaine to a good habit therof.

Kni. Well Timotheus, the verie truth is, I haue hard so much as you say, & therefore in the name of God, begin with my children when you please, and God willing) you shall bee pleased for your paines, but I will make this conditiou with you (good Timotheus) that you shall giue me leave to aske you some questions, by the way, in your instructions, for it doth me good to heare your reason, how say you Timotheus, are you content it shall bee so?

Tim. With all my hart Sir, for by so doing, I shall daylie enjoy your good companie, and with all, it will greatlie further the profit of your children, and with the more ease, and comfort passe ouer the tediousnes of teaching.

Kni. I thanke you Timotheus, but what if you did first write downe all such rules (as you vse for instruction) that they may from the beginning, (hauing them by hart) do nothing but that they may haue it in memorie and grounded by reason.

Tim. You say well it shall bee so, and at your pleasure aske what questions you please, and I will shew you the reason for it to the full, and I hope such as shall satisfie you fullie, wherefore in the name of God I thus begin. First it behoueth a scholer to haue a verie good instrument verie well strung, faire to the eie, and easie to reach any stop whatsoever, and verie well founding.

Kni. Why, mee thinks it were no great matter what instrument a beginner hath, considering that for the most part, young beginners, soone make old instruments, as young scholers soone make old bookes.

Tim. Indee to haue a good instrument lieth as much in the habitie of the parents or friends, as also in their good wils to haue it sojourn why I think it good to haue (if it were possible) euen the verie best instrument for a learner at the first, is this: a good instrument will please a learner euery way, for it delighteth them to looke and behold it now & then, likewise they loue easie and smooth instruments, and although they can do but little, yet it will sound well, and so encourage them to learne with delight, whereas contrariwise, a bad or dull instrument will quell their spirits quite, so that in a long time, or neuer, will they profit in their forced labours.

Kni. I promise you, it now seemeth to mee verie good reason that it should bee so, and againe it is an old and true saying, that one good thing is euer worth ten bad, also there is small losse in a good thing, it euer yeldeth monie with profit: well here is a Lute according to your desire in all points, I pray you goe forward good Timotheus.

Tim. Now you haue a good Lute, it behoueth you to loue it and vse it well, for by the vsage you shall shew your loue, therefore marke how you ought to vse your Lute, about all things, keepe it from wet, for wet will spoile the strings and make loofe the ribs, and when you haue done playing vpon it, put it vp into the case, putting the Trebles a little down, but first you shall learne to handle your Lute with a comelie grace, readie to play with delight, and to this purpose in the name of God, doe as I shall instruct you.

GENERALL RVLES.

First sitting vpright with your bodie, leane the edge of the Lute against the table, and your bodie against the Lute, not too hard for hurting your Lute, neither to soflie for letting of it fall, for the table, your bodie, and your right arme, must so poyes the Lute, that you may haue your left hand at libertie to carie to, and fro, at your pleasure, letting the middle part of the necke of the Lute, slide vp and downe the brauene of the thumb which is against the mayle of the said thumb, holding out the wrist of the hand, and alwaies carrying your thumb against your forefinger in any stop whatsoever, for so shall your hand be the more comelie, the more readie, and with the more ease, stop any stop the cleaner, now for your right hand, called the striking hand leane vpon the bellie of the Lute with your little finger onelic, & that neither to far from the Treble strings, neither to neere, and although you ought to leane lightlie, yet carie your hand steddilie, not sliding out of his place, also remembriug, to leane lightlie vpon your arme vpon your Lute, for otherwise it wil

The Schoole of Musicke.

it will paine the finewes and hinder your play. All the aforesaid had, both in memorie and practises (the houlding of your Lute, carrying of your hand, and sitting vpright with your bodie, I mean) then (in the name of God) houlding the Lute (as is aforesaid) comelic with your thumb against your forefinger (as it were readie to stop, yet but onelic houlding your Lute then with the thumb of your right hand (houlding the rest of the fingers straight forth before your thumb (neither to neere the strings nor too farre off, begin to strike the first string downward with the thumb onelic, and also striking with your thumb behind your fingers say: Base, Tenor, Contra-tenor, Great Meanes, Small meanes Treble. This done: then begin at the Trebles and so goe vppward viz. backward, striking them string by string with your forefinger before your thumb, that is, houlding downe your thumb behind your fingers, and name them in order saying, Treble Small Meanes, Great Meanes, Contra-tenor, Tenor, Base, this doing fo oft, downward and vppward, naming them, and also striking them with the thumb behind the fingers, that you haue it most perfect and readie both in mynd & fingers. This perfectie had: learne to know your frets in order, and in stopping them comelic, cleanlie, & stronglie, the first string or Treble, stopped in the first fret, by the head of the Lute with the forefinger, is b. in the Treble, and fo stopped in the small meanes, great meanes & c. The first fret is b. the second fret is c. the third fret is d. and so forth vntill you come to i. which is the last fret about the neck of the Lute, but you may glue on more frets in fit place and space (vntill you come to xx. Again if you haue 14. 16. or 18. strings, those bases are called Diapasones, now hauing the names & knowledge of the strings and stops perfectly by roate, you shall also learne to know them by booke (called Tableture.)

Kn. Now truly Timoth: I like this method verie well, for I perceiue, great reason in it: But we (in old time) haue bene fast with rigour, not by reason, & that made vs the run, now vnegarded for I see, that the houlding of the thombe alwaies against the fore-finger, giueth (not only a great ease, & grace to the player) but also, it determineth a certain limitation to the hand, as of necessity it must be fo-proceed good Timothens.

Tim. Sir, by this you see, how necessarie a thing it is, to know how to hould an instrument, before it is to know how to stop it, and likewise, how fit it is to know (both how to hould, & what to stop, first by roate, before it were fit to learne by the booke: for quell the spirits, & qualle delight. Now you know how to hold your Lute, also, what the strings and stops are, vwithout booke: Now you shall learne what they be by the booke: look how you name them vpon the Lute in order, vppward, and downward, fo these lines, by the like denomination, shall figure vnto you what strings they be by Tableture Example:

Treble.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c
Small Meanes.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c
Great Meanes.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c
Contra-tenor.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c
Tenor.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c
Base.	b	c	d	e	f	g	a	b	c

Some in the steed of (i) put (y) and although you, heere see but six single lines, and vpon the Lute eue: srie string double, you shall vnderstand, that two strings are in one tune, & also beare the name but of one string: as Base, not Bases. Tenor, not Tenors. Now let vs proceede, to learne a lesson by the booke. But first take this lesson by the way, offer not rashly to stop or strike, but be well aduised, with what finger to stop, & with what to strike, and for that purpose, mark what figure standeth vnder the letter, whether the figure of 1. 2. 3. or 4. for these figures represent the 4. fingers of the left or stop ping hand. The figure of 1. representeth the first or fore-finger. 2. the second. 3. the third, and 4. the little finger. Also that letter which is to be striken downward, and if there be a prick vnder the letter, that letter must be striken vppward: this well noted, begin to play these stops and strokes following, striking them by 4. and 4. all in one length of time, vntill you can play it a pace, or runne it quick.

Doe these points perfectly, not striking at it, but with such ease, as if you did it carelessly, obseruing the carriage both of hand & body, & when you are weary, leaue it, and to it againe, but go to it with a willing minde.

Kn. How would you haue them learne this lesson, not knowing the tymes ouer head? were it not necessarie to teach them that first?

Tim. No, for the time without stops or tune, is but an abstract, & my purpose is, first to teach the stops, & then the times with all afterwards: & therefore, I haue set it with all one time ouer head, as you see, vntill the had learning be perfectly had, & both the name & nature of that time well comitted to memory, and this lesson had, than will I instruct them in all the varieties of tymes: as followeth.

The Schoole of Musicke.

A young beginner (although this were Semiquauer tyme) shall in the despite of his hart, make euer y stroke a Semibreffe, & then as he multiplyeth in perfectnes, so he shall multiply in fallnesse of tyme, whereby is to be noted, that from one time all other are multiplied & doubled, as for example. This long stroke here is in Tableture, a Semibreffe, which by adding of one dafh to the top, as thus, ¶ maketh it double his tyme, that is twice as fast a tyme as it was before. And by adding one dafh more to that dafh thus, ¶ maketh it yet as fast againe as the second: & by adding a third dafh thus, ¶ maketh it yet as fast againe as the same. And by adding the fourth dafh thus, ¶ doubleth the time before him: whose names are as followeth.

A Semibreffe. A Minim. A Cratchet. A Quauer. A Semiquauer.
 So that you see two Minims go to a Semibreffe, as thus, ¶ two Cratches to a Minim, as thus, ¶ ¶ two quauers to a Cratchet, as thus, ¶ ¶ And two Semiquauers to a Quauer, as thus, ¶ ¶ All which multiply the Semibreffe, as heere you see.

Heere you see, two Minims make a Semibreffe. Likewise, foure Cratches make a Semibreffe. Also, eight Quauers go to a Semibreffe. And lastly, sixtene Semiquauers go to a Semibreffe. This is sufficient for the knowing of the tymes only, that if there be a little prick, beside any one of them, thus, ¶. ¶. ¶. ¶. that then that prick doth make the tyme he standeth by, half so long againe as it was before; as a prick by a Semibreffe maketh it a Semibreffe & half a Semibreffe: & so of all the rest; & this learne by hart.

Kni. Well when they can run this point or treble (as you call it) by 4. and 4. together in order, a Quauer or Semiquauer time, what is thereby to be noted, or learned, as a profit attained towards the reading playing of a lesson at the first sight, which they neuer see before.

Tim. It is a verie necessaric question which you demaund, and you shall vnderstand, how necessaric, true, and perfect a rule it is, which not knowne, it is impossible that euer one should play a lesson, either at the first sight, or cunningly: For first, where you see a letter or stop without any prick vnder it, you shall for euer in the like stop, strike it downward, for two reasons, the first is, if it stand alone, that is, if it be a ¶ and the next a ¶ or the first a ¶ and the second a ¶ the first a ¶ the next a ¶ going so on in se-

These are said to stand alone, that is, not being accompanied with fellows, all of one time, either Cratches, Quauers, or Semiquauers: as thus,

And also being of a long tyme, as Semibreffes and Minims, for it is a generall rule, that euerie stroke, is more naturall to be striken downward, than vpwards; but the swiftnesse of tyme, is the cause of striking vp-ward, and the far- being the first of a point, nesse off, of se- is striken vpward, which cond- if the point were all of ing a point, one string, or still the as thus: I 2 I 2 I 2 I 2 I 2

Going in 4. and 4. then for euer, the first is downe, the second is vps; so that if the pricks were away, this is a generall rule. Now by this rule, you may by occasion, strike twice down together as if you have a point begin thus, ¶ ¶

Heere the first is downward, because it stands alone; and the second, is striken downward, because it is the first of a point; this is one necessaric rule, and also profitable. The second rule is, you see in the first point, how you vse but two fingers in all the whole lesson, that is, the fore-finger & the second alwaies holding your thoubm against your fore-finger. Now, it is a generall rule, that where you leaue no stop, leaue no fingers; and where you leaue a stop, leaue a finger, as this example following sheweth.

The Schoole of Musicke.

Here you see betwixt f and d no stop betwene, therefore you leaue no finger betwene; againe you see, that in the next stop where you haue b and d you leaue a stop which is f, and consequently you leaue a finger betwene the first and the third, which is the second, and this is ingenerall, in playing of any Treble whatsoever. Now you haue a generall rule for striking downward and upward, and also for leauing a finger and no finger. Now you shall haue a generall rule to grace it, as with passionate play, and rebelling it: and note that the longer the time is of a single stroke, that the more neede it hath of a relith, for a relith will help, both to grace it, and also it helps to continue the found of the note his full time: but in a quicke time a little touch or jerke will serue, and that onely with the most strongest finger. Passionate play is to runne some part of the squares in a Treble (that is foure and foure) first loud, then soft, and so in a decorum, now louder, now softer, (not in extremitie of either) but as companie of other instruments, or farnesse off giuech occasion. And to the better instruction of all scholers for the Lute, I will (God willing) set downe some, Trebles, which shall containe all manner and kinde of points for the fingering, in their due place of my booke, and the grounds also to be playd with: them, when they please, (and can haue the ground plaide to them.) And now (God willing) I will proceed to instruct my scholer how to play, a full lesson, what strange inuention soeuer it shall seeme to haue in it. Notwithstanding, I haue knowne some (which haue bene more curious, than either cunning, or wise,) who haue struien to finde out steps, both vnaturall, vnpleasant, and vnusfull, (forsooth to be thought great bugges) that haue in all their liues, not bene able to play euen but an easie lesson (in comparison) at the first sight. But rob, and run by guess, seeme gaye, & goodly &c. But let such looke heere, and they shall finde reason to guide them, and truth in Aite. And to let them take heede of should saying, Art hath no enimie but Ignorance. Now to the purpose, before: I haue taught you, how to behaue your selfe in all single stops, now be as diligent in all sorts of full stops: for in this leeth all the whole skill: for that in a full lesson, all manner of stops, full or single, swift or slow, are containd; therefore know this, and know all, all which I will shew you in breefe and generall rules (God willing,) with all such examples as shall seeme fit.

First, you shall vnderstand, that wee terme the fore-finger, and the little finger (of the stopping hand) two extreames: for that they be the outmost parts thereof; & that in going downward with a point, (frō the head of the Lute) the point is alwaies begun with the forefinger, as thus:

But contrariwise, from the bodie of the Lute, to the head, the point must be begun, with the other extreme, as this example sheweth.

All such points, I will set downe in a fit place by themselves, but by this example of the two extreames, you see the first governeth the vpper part or frets, and the other, the nether part, or next lowest: and thus the forefinger alwaies, in any stop wher (b) is, full, or single, except there bee in one stop, 2. (bees,) and an (a) betwene is to possesse the stop (b) as this example maketh plaine:

The Schoole of Musicke.

Note also, that \underline{r} in any of the Bases in a full stop, wherein is an \underline{a} (& in the more Treble strings \underline{D} is the lowest of the stop) that that \underline{i} is to be stopped with the second finger alwaies: but if there be (in stead of \underline{D} with \underline{r} in one of the Bases) an \underline{e} than \underline{r} must bee stopped with the fore-finger, as thus:

But in any full stop whatsoever, wherein ther is neuer an \underline{a} there lay your fore-finger along in the highest of the stop, flat vpon the neck of the Lute; as thus:

Heere lay your fore-finger along, in the first stop, in \underline{b} , in the next, in \underline{r} , in the next, in \underline{e} , in the next, in \underline{D} , in the next, in \underline{f} &c. Alwaies noting this, that in any stop whatsoever, that you pluck away no finger, vnll you needes must. And as before I haue taught you how to relysh in a single stop, with that finger which is the strongest, so take this for a generall rule, that you relysh in a full stop, with that finger which is most idlest, in any string whatsoever: either a strong relysh for loudnesse, or a milde relysh for passionate atencion.

Kni. In mine opinion, you haue spoke so much as may be spoken, for the left hand in all points: but I pray you, are there not the like rules for the right hand, called the striking hand.

Tom. Yes Sir, that there be: for what auaileth it to stop neuer so neate, fine and cleane, and if it be flubberd with a bad touch, or stroke: therefore, let these rules following, be obserued diligently, without the which, all fine play of the Lute is spoild, and nothing worth. Note, that you strike cleane, plump together in a full stroke of many parts or strings, sometimes loude, sometimes soft, letting your right hand, answere the left hand at the instant, striuing with no stroke: and to conclude, the touch of the one hand, to answere the stop of the other hand, in the full harmony of consent, (called a Sympatie.) and then to know what strings to strike, with what fingers, mark all these rules following, and let them not be forgotten.

You haue heard, that every stroke is more naturally to be striken downward then vpward, which is very true, but aboue all, the Bases are to be striken downward, and for the same purpose, you see how aptly the thumb fitteth that office, and likewise the fingers remaine as readie to strike vpward and meet the thumbe with their troupes of notes, as who should say the one were readie to aid the other and so they bee, yet sometimes seuerall, one afore the other, as sometimes first the thumbe, and the fingers after, sometimes the fingers first, and the thumbe after, and sometimes both together, as heere vnderneath you see.

Heere, the Tenor beginneth the point with \underline{a} open striken downward with the thumbe, and \underline{a} in the Treble follows striken vpward with the third finger, next \underline{r} in the Contratenor striken downward with the thumbe, & last of the 4 follows \underline{D} in the small Meanes, striken vpward with the second finger. And now the reason why \underline{a} in the Treble and \underline{D} in the small Meanes, are striken vpward with the first and second fingers, is this, the more strings are betwene the Basse and Trebles, the more fingers are left betwene the the thumbe and litle finger, and likewise the fewer strings the fewer fingers, as you see aboue mentioned.

Again where you see three prickes vnder any letter as thus \underline{a} , you shall strike that letter vpward with the third finger, and so when you see two prickes thus \underline{a} vpward with the second, and one pricke with the fore finger as thus \underline{a} . It skils not what letter, or strng it is, but if a point begin with two letters together, although it follow the point either in the Trebles, Meanes, or Bases, yet shall the second of the point be striken vpward as for example.

The Schoole of Musicke.

First see what manner of lesson it is, whether it bee a set Song, Immorinie, Pauen, Galliard, Almaine, Figure, Lenolia, Covanta, Country dance, or Toy, whatsoeuer, according to the nature of the lesson, to giue it his grace with grauitie or quicknes. Secondly by looking it ouer, you shall see the fastest time in all the lesson contained, that accordingly you may so begin as you may goe through without check. Thirdly by looking it ouer first, you shall see whether it be faire & true pricket, without blots. Lastly, by hauing once seene it, you may the better remember it when you see it againe. All these reasons well considered, you shall finde in them such necessitie, such truth, such ease, with such content & delight, as you will confesse, that it were impossible to play well without the knowledge therof: For true Art maketh hard things easie, labour maketh hard things perfect, or (to speake more truly) ready. Now, when you can play vpon the Lute, I will (God willing) shew you how your Lute shall instruct you to sing in such manner that you may be your owne teacher, and haue the charge of a singing man, and then what by your skill in playing vpon the Lute, and the knowledge you haue in the prick-song, you may verie easilie attaine to play vpon the Viol de Gambo, either by Tabliture or by prick-song notes. For the carriage of your left hand vpon the Lute, is likewise iustly to be obserued vpon the base Viol, as shall be more plainly declared in his due place after the Lute lessons.

And thus for a last farewell (for this time) I giue you in general charge, to vse all instruments with a good grace, comelie play, without anticke faces, or shouldrings, except such (which of necessitie) the nature of the instrument doth require, as reaching stops vpon the Lute, when you lay your finger along & stretch out your little finger along at length, as from D to A, and in coming from the Trebles of the Viol, to the Base, where of necessitie you must, somewhat thrull the neck of the Viol from you, and shrink in the bow hand, to come fitly vnto it.

And now it makes mee somewhat shrinke, to thinke that :

Perhaps, there may some Chriicke Satire sad,
(Fraught with the Froth of vulgars excellent)
Hunt for a praise, and say how that is bad,
Which hee doth know so much as Lacke a Lent,
Such Hounds I say, when they their mouths haue spent,
Let them take heed their hunting be not spide,
Least that the Glouer hang them for their hide.

I know, the Enuious, Idle, Ignorant,
Will spit at mee the poyson of their spleene,
Again, I know the Skillfull Laborant,
Will not mislike, when they my works haue seene,
An Honest minde will soone know what I meane,
For Countries cause a Souliour spends his Blood,
And I my Talent for my Countries good.

Now I haue led the Way and broke the Ice,
Cast out the Lumps and left the Water cleere:
If any one to follow make it nice,
And yet that they can Better it will sweare,
To such I speake Aloud that they may heare,
Except they Doe: they will not be Beleeu'd,
And being Cast, tis hard to bee Repren'd.

I doe not Rob the Skillfull of their due,
Nor Patch my Bad, with other Good inuention,
For if Old grounds False set, I doe make True,
Therein I shew of Art the true intention,
And this (I hope) deserues no reprehension.
But yet I know, how Well I ere intend it,
Some will far sooner finde a Fault then mend it.

Some Mandrake Mome, disposed to pick a Quarrell, (Ass, if hee doe, it is a thing that dreimt I on)
Will say I speake too much vpon the Barrell,
And so I doe, but yet it is an emptie one,
How ere it is, yet so it is that tempt I on,
The Wise, to worke his euerlasting Fame,
The Foole, to worke his euerlasting Shame.

The Schoole of Musicke.

The image displays a handwritten musical score for a piece titled "The Schoole of Musicke." The score is organized into ten systems, each consisting of a musical staff and a corresponding line of tablature. The musical notation includes various note values, rests, and accidentals (sharps and flats). The tablature consists of letters (a, b, c, d, e, f, g) placed on a six-line staff, representing fret positions on a lute or similar stringed instrument. Some systems include repeat signs (double dots) and measure numbers (6, 7, 8) indicating specific points in the piece. The handwriting is in an older style, characteristic of early printed or manuscript notation.

Y Lord Willobies
welcome home.

The musical score is written on 12 systems. Each system contains two staves: the upper staff is for the voice and the lower staff is for the lute. The notation is handwritten and includes various musical symbols such as clefs, notes, rests, and bar lines. The lute line uses a form of tablature with letters (a, b, c, d, e, f, g) and numbers (1-6) to indicate fret positions. The text 'Y Lord Willobies welcome home.' is written below the first two systems.

Handwritten musical notation on a five-line staff. The notation includes various rhythmic values (quarter, eighth, and sixteenth notes) and rests. Above the staff, there are several groups of vertical lines, resembling a shorthand notation for chords or specific rhythmic patterns. The staff contains several measures of music, with a double bar line and repeat dots appearing in the middle.

The Schoole of Musicke.

The image displays a handwritten musical score for a piece titled "The Schoole of Musicke." The score is organized into six systems, each consisting of a single staff with notes and tablature. The notation is characteristic of early printed music, using a five-line staff with a C-clef and a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The notes are written in a style that combines standard musical notation with letters (a, b, c, d, e, f, g) placed on or below the lines to indicate pitch. The tablature consists of letters placed below the staff lines, often with a vertical line to its left, indicating fret positions on a lute or similar stringed instrument. The score includes various musical symbols such as repeat signs (double dots with a vertical line), a trill-like symbol (a vertical line with a small hook), and a fermata-like symbol (a vertical line with a horizontal bar). The piece concludes with a double bar line and repeat dots at the end of the sixth system.

The Schoole of Musicke.

This image shows a handwritten musical score for 'The Schoole of Musicke'. It consists of seven systems of musical notation, each with two staves. The notation is a form of rhythmic shorthand, where letters (a, b, r, t, e) and symbols (♩, ♪, ♫, ♬) are used to represent notes and rests. Above each staff, there are various rhythmic symbols, including vertical lines with flags and beams, which likely indicate the time signature and the duration of the notes. The score is organized into measures by vertical bar lines. The first system has four measures, the second has three, the third has four, the fourth has four, the fifth has three, the sixth has three, and the seventh has four. The notation is dense and characteristic of early printed music manuscripts.

FIRST, you shall vnderstand, that all that is to be done in song, is within the compasse of an eight, called a Diapason, for what is about an eight, is but a repetition of the same notes which you vttered before, in the eight notes of your Gam-vt.

As for example.

Heere you see, that from Gam-vt to G-fol-re-vt in space, to G-fol-re-vt in rule above, are the same in number, quantitie and qualitie; which according to the Alphabet, from G.a.b.c.d.e.f. and then G. againe by rule and space, are expressed in the Diapason, by five termes, words, or notes, as thus. Vth for vt, re, mi fa, fol, la, and so full the higher you got, fa, fol, la, mi, fa, fol, la, &c. which is thus expressed in tablature.

Now you haue gotten the way to tune your voice, (note for note) with the Lute in the vnison, (that is: all in one time or sound, or eight vnder) then you may rule your voice to the Viol also: First knowing the quantitie of tymes, and their rests, for the which purpose I haue set out some Psalmes, both to the voice, and Lute, and voice & Viol, in the Vnison, for your sure guide. Also, I haue set them full to the Lute, so that you may vse which you please at your pleasure. The times of prick-song, you may know by the times of the Lute: as followeth.

Rules to instruct you to sing.

Hold your Viole somewhat strongly betwene your legs, and in all points, carrie your left hand vpon it, as you doe vpon the Lute.

Hold your bow or stick, hard by the Nut of it, with your forefinger, about the stick, your second and third finger (in the hollow of the Nut) betwene the heire and the stick, and your little finger beneath the heire, slack quite from it.
